

Introduction

Behaviour Based Safety has lately become the buzz word in our constant fight against injuries and losses. As such, many companies have climbed onto the proverbial bandwagon in offering this as the “silver bullet” in fixing all our problems. Sadly, many of these companies can today again look back at yet another expensive initiative that did not deliver. Why?

Simply stated, behaviour change is but an element of organisational culture change, and unless all elements of this cultural change are managed, behaviour based safety becomes but an observational program that does not change the culture, and inevitably dies a silent death. Systems, Risk and Leadership is not only an integral part of organizational culture change, but are also essential elements that must therefore be addressed in your BBS programs. Behaviour and Risk are integrated, and your BBS approach must recognise and address this principle clearly.

This course is therefore aimed at creating an understanding and awareness of the principles and interrelationships amongst these crucial elements, and shows the principles that must be addressed very clearly.

Course Objectives

This course provides participants with an understanding and working knowledge on the principles of Organizational culture change – from a practical perspective.

Summary of Content

Through case studies and industry best practice approaches, delegates will be made aware of:

- The principles and drivers of Organizational culture change
- The relationship between culture change and safety/risk management systems
- The role of Leadership in Culture Change and BBS
- The roles of systems in Behaviour change

- The enablers of behaviour change
- How risk and behaviour can be integrated practically
- What comes first, behaviour or systems?
- Where do we start, and how

Aimed NQF Level - NQF Level: 4 - 5

- Executives and Managers responsible for, or involved in SAFETY and Risk Management,
- Executives and Managers responsible for training and Human resources
- SHEQ Practitioners/ Safety Officers/Business Improvement People who are responsible
- to facilitate continuous improvement

Duration - 1 Day

Group size - 10 - 15

Please contact Expectra for pricing on these courses